In the Wake Of the War With Corey

After a week's lapse Herbert Corey is getting his letters through to America again, and they probably will appear regularly in The Journal in future. Mr. Corey has reached Berlin and his articles will deal with conditions on the German side.

BY HERBERT COREY.

(Copyright, 1914, by Herbert Corey.) BERLIN, Nov. 29.—Things are not so gloomy here as they were on entering Germany. The first is the air of smiling assurance with which one is greeted on every hand. Each German faces a smile. Each German shakes hands warmly. Everyone he will ask:

"Isn't it surprising to find everything is perfectly normal in spite of the war?"
The second thing one notices is that nothing is normal at all. That German smile, I fear, is replaced by a deep wrinkle when the German finds himself alone. The truth is that he is whistling to keep his thoughts from the war.

How long do you think the war will last?
When I say that things are badger, the German says: "Yes, but it is all the final issue of the war."
That is on the knees of the reddest of the reds. The German may win or they may lose. I am not prophet enough to say with certainty which side it is likely that every little shopkeeper and every manufacturer and every banker—almost every German has suffered in his pocket. That loss will grow at an increasing rate with every week of war.

Berlin's street lights are the brightest in Europe. An excellent performance is given at the Imperial opera house. There will be one grand night of the stars are open. The restaurants are comfortably filled—crowded—every evening. Where ever you turn one eyes, in opera or theater or restaurant, one sees a program of poverty and the German uniform. There are no "for rent" signs on the houses, though many of the houses are being sold for a very important time. At first one gets the impression of a business man who is not in a hurry to sell. But business is being done.

One hears a dozen times a day the excellent music of a military band. Retail prices have been advanced in many important items. At first one gets the impression of a business man who is not in a hurry to sell. But business
is being done.

(By Associated Press.)
MONTREAL, Nov. 29.—The recent reports that the German fleet is now in the south Atlantic appear to have been confirmed here today. It is also rumored that a powerful British fleet is nearby.

Interruption of British shipping, and the outfitting of German merchant ships with supplies were accorded here a confirmatory of reports of the approach of the German fleet, which is now believed to be off the coast of the Cape Verde Islands.

The German steamer Patagonia is believed to have been sighted, the British cruiser Cordoba with coal and water supplying the British fleet.

Marine records show that the steamer Cordoba was at Montevideo on November 22. The news reached that port on September 23. It was said that the Cordoba had been seen from here. The last report of the Patagonia is her arrival on October 22 at Montevideo, Uruguay.

MILLIONS OF RED CROSS
SEALS ARE NOW ON SALE

Annual Christmas Shoppers' Campaign to Aid Tuberculosis War

Fifteen million Red Cross seals were placed on sale in the United States Monday, thus ushering in the annual campaign by which Christmas shoppers everywhere aid in the fight against tuberculosis.

This announcement was made Monday morning at the opening session of the Southern Tuberculosis conference, which is holding its first annual meeting in the convention hall of the chambers of commerce.

It was stated that Atlanta would dispose of a great part of these seals.

The meeting was called to order by Hugh M. Willet, of Atlanta, one of the vice presidents who introduced Dr. Charles L. Minor, of Asheville, president of the conference.

Army of Atlanta
Boys Will Make
Attack on Turkey

"There ain't gonna be no leaving" Tuesday afternoon when Atlanta Turkey and their kind friends set through the city, which will be spread at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the convention hall of the chambers of commerce.

In his big brother spirit, each Turkish will find him a youngster—newspaper, office boy or just boy—and drop by to the chamber of commerce.

And after a horde of boys have been devastated, there will be a boxing bout and a talk by Dr. John R. Atkinson, of St. Philip's cathedral, and a song by Mrs. Pearson and some presents from the big brothers and three cheer and a tiger for the good-fellowship which gives large feast to small boys with big appetites.

MADAME EVELYN SCOTNEY
SINGS HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Great Coloratura Soprano
Will Appear in Concert
at Auditorium

Madame Evelyn Scotney, the great coloratura soprano of the Boston Opera company, will sing in concert Tuesday night at the auditorium under the auspices of the Alhambra Lyceum company.

She will be assisted by Edward White, basso cantato of the Boston Opera company. Eric Hayne, violin virtuoso of the Boston Symphony orchestra, and Donald Proctor, accompanist.

Madame Scotney undoubtedly is the greatest singer appearing in America. She sings a half note higher than Tetramini, and is one of the few women capable of the "Queen of the Night" in the "Mule Flute."

As a girl in Melbourne, Australia, she attracted the attention of Melba, who was so delighted that she took the young singer with her to Europe. There Madame Scotney was personally trained by Melba and later became a pupil of Marchesi and Tosti.

In Paris and London she began concert work, and from Europe came to America as a member of the Boston Opera company. Of her first appearance at the Boston Post said:

"It was as clear as crystal, extraordinarily brilliant with that charmingly hard timbre that denotes a great coloratura singer."

In the concert in which she will appear here, Madame Scotney will introduce a program which will illustrate all the qualities of her voice. At the same time, the numbers she will sing will be of her highest standard.

Afternoon Session: "The Operation and Maintenance of Local Hospitals for Tuberculosis," Dr. Charles J. Hefield, Philadelphia, general secretary of the national body, "Nursing Problems in Tuberculosis," Miss Irene Foster, Jacksonville, Fla., "Relief of Tuberculosis Families," Joseph Logan, Atlanta, "The Home Hospital Experiment," Dr. Donald B. Armstrong, New York.

Evening Session: "Tuberculosis Near and Far," Dr. Charles J. Hefield, Philadelphia, general secretary of the national body, "The Menace of the Tuberculosis Negro to the Community," Dr. W. Rankin, New York, "Education of the Negro on Tuberculosis," Dr. William A. Harris, Savannah.

The sum of $25.17 for the support of the colored orphanage at 19 Leonard street, was reported raised among colored people, Sunday school and church organizations at a meeting Sunday at the Old Fellow's auditorium. The meeting was the culmination of a ten day campaign. Other churches are to be heard from.

Modern Dances Are Raked Fore and Aft

By Dr. Dunbar Ogden

Dr. Dunbar Ogden, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, in a sermon Sunday night on dancing, characterized the modern Parisian dances as "hell," and denounced the French dancing masters as "rotten with the rottenness of Paris and Italy."

"The church has always had an attitude of warning against the theater, card playing and dancing," said Dr. Oden. "This is not because the church does not sanction pleasure, but because the particular pleasures have constantly possessed an evil tendency.

"Let us look at the development of the dance. It commenced with a form of skipping and evolved into a spectacle foul and obscene. People here can remember when the square dance and the Virginia reel were the vogue. Now the dance of the hour is the turkey trot.

"There is something questionable in the argument that the modern dance can be modestly danced. Many women submit to this fallacious argument and allow their sons and daughters to be instructed by French dancing masters whose hearts are rotten with rottenness of Paris and Italy. I would preserve the element of the poetry of motion and abolish the immod-
